

I ask the FAA to limit helicopter overflights rather than increase them. Government studies have demonstrated that the higher minimum altitudes saves lives; Hawaii's wildlife - especially forest birds -- are negatively affected by overflight disruptions, from mating problems to abandonment of nests. Also I live in a kind of wilderness area at South Point. The constant noise is very disturbing to the peace of mind which I treasure living here. Also the state and National Park Service should have the ability to restrict or ban air tour flights over sensitive area.
